

KRUGLER LAW

Helping You Protect What Matters Most

*A*ttorney Shane Krugler's estate planning and business law practice focuses on helping families and small businesses enhance their lives today and secure their futures for tomorrow. He excels in guiding his clients through the often confusing maze of financial and legal decisions to create legal and life plans that ensure the well-being of their families and preserves the accomplishments of cherished business goals. His considerable legal expertise includes family protection, wealth preservation, and values-based planning for traditional and blended families, as well as strategic planning and implementation of business structures, ongoing management, and succession for entrepreneurs and small business owners. Whether you are focused on family or on building your empire, Shane will help you to craft a plan that achieves your goals for your loved ones and your business today and for years to come.

Shane's passion for legal and financial planning came early. While serving as a Hospital Corpsman in the United States Navy, Shane's car was struck by a drunk driver. After spending nearly a week in the hospital, the insurance company compensated him with $5,000. Not wanting to squander the proceeds, Shane took the check to the bank to open a saving account. What he got instead was an education, and a keen interest, into the world of investing. He immediately began part-time college courses while still enlisted. After being honorably discharged, Shane completed his bachelor of science in business from Indiana University with a new found desire to help others through effective financial planning. Shane evolved his career in financial services focusing on regulatory compliance, corporate risk management and ethics, eventually earning his law degree at night while working full-time.

After 15 years working for multiple Fortune 500 companies, Shane's life took an unexpected turn. A close family member became very ill. During this time, he realized that he had not taken the necessary time to focus on his family. Shane discovered there was a better way to serve his family and his community. He left the corporate world and chose to concentrate on estate planning and business law because it allows him to bring together his deep knowledge of financial services, business, and the law with his passion of helping families and small businesses secure a happy and prosperous future.

Most importantly, Shane is the proud husband of his high-school sweet heart, Megan, and even prouder father to Sophia, Max, and Vaughn.
